WTS Klient expanding with new business line

Establishment of WTS Klient Business Automation Kft. provides solutions for new challenges

Budapest, 17 February 2020 – In January 2020, WTS Klient launched a new business line led by economist and IT expert János Németh. WTS Klient Business Automation Kft. offers automated business solutions for the company's clients to reduce their business and tax administration burdens and helps utilise the new opportunities that automation brings.

WTS Klient offering tax advisory, accounting, payroll, financial and legal advisory services grew with a new division in January 2020 as a way of responding to the new challenges of the rapidly developing digital world. WTS Klient Business Automation uses the possibilities of linking digital systems related to accounting, taxation and other administrative areas (e.g. EKAER, online invoice reporting, etc.) and the availability of databases – created among other things as a result of obligatory data reporting – for the benefit of its clients. Besides automating and robotising monotonous and routine tasks in clients' administrative systems, the new company will provide help for business managers to make more effective use of the information stemming from connections between large databases.

WTS Klient Business Automation cooperates closely with WTS ITAX GmbH, which offers both proprietary and external software solutions for its clients to tackle complex tasks requiring not only comprehensive taxation expertise but also significant IT skills.

The new business line of WTS Klient is headed up by János Németh. An expert committed to innovation, he is one of the owners of the company and an IT engineer and economist. He completed his IT engineering studies at the Janus Pannonius University (now University of Pécs) and acquired an MBA at the Budapest University of Technology and Economics (BME). He has 20 years of experience in the field of IT services for business processes. He is a founding member of the Hungarian Association of Fraud Investigators, where he works in the specialised field of IT support for audits.

“In recent years, digitalisation has grown exponentially in all fields of business. Business processes are more and more IT-based, accounting and tax consultants need to work increasingly with databases created by automated systems. We established this new business line to face these professional challenges to the best of our abilities, and to serve our clients with the most optimal solutions available” – said Zoltán Lambert, managing partner of WTS Klient, explaining the launch of the new business line. “We are very happy to have János for this, because with his intensive experience in the industry he is a great help for us in combining our accounting and taxation expertise with state-of-the-art IT solutions” – added Zoltán Lambert.
